

PROPHET MUHAMMAD - A MODEL IN COMMUNICATION WITH PEOPLE

Those who had the opportunity to study communication at academic level, know how many theories, books, studies exist about the complex process of human communication. The original Western models of communication - verbal, graphic, or math - find it very difficult to describe the structural, functional and technical aspects of this phenomenon.

However, the best example of an act of communication and in the human relationship, can be obtained from the life of Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him). In fact, in the environmental practices of the Prophet, we see that he was the best example for the treatment of people. His skills of communication, with a unique and interesting behavior, always polite and smiling, made the Prophet (peace be upon him) win the hearts of people around him, and of all those who came into contact with him.

.From his practical behavior and communication with people, we can draw an important lesson, that is the audience of a teacher with rare skill communication should put into function all the senses, to draw precise meanings and important lessons. This is why people around the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) were transformed and, in a few years, they managed to build a great civilization. Then, perhaps we should follow the same path today. So, it is not sufficient only to read and learn by heart the sayings of the Prophet (peace be upon him), but it is important to feel the positive effects of these sayings in our hearts and minds, and to practice them in the real life.
