

Prof. Dr. Hasan ÇIPURI

IMPLEMENTATION OF STANDARD NORMS FOR THE PURITY OF NATIVE LANGUAGE

Love for the native language, its blossom and development, has been and remains a permanent distinguishing characteristic of our people as well as a great inspiring force in its social-cultural life and struggle for freedom, independence and progress.

The progress of the current standard Albanian language is the coronation of a long and complicated process of crystallization of all its structure's parts: phonetics, grammar and word-formation. Albanian language has reached in these days that development degree allowing to be assessed scientifically that the Albanian people possesses already a standard literary language used almost by all the Albanians that write and speak Albanian.

Current problems of the standard language

1. The standard Albanian has gone through a long and complicate way and has reached today the degree of a rich, elaborated and standardized language. The foundations of the Albanian literary language are laid by the Renaissance figures.

2. That our standard language has reached today the level of the developed and crystallized ones, it does not mean that everything has been solved so far, that there are no defects or nothing else to be done has remained. Unceasingly, life issues new problems. The efforts for continuous perfection of the standard language remain a permanent goal, strongly highlighted by the Conference dedicated to the 30th anniversary of the Congress of Spelling held on November 11th-12th, 2002 in Tirana.