

THE INTEGRATION OF ISLAMIC WORLDVIEW

There is a belief behind every behavior, form, color, thought, ritual, pushing and making it visible to the world. This belief is a perspective on how a person or a society perceives life and what meaning it gives to it. It can value or deny everything from the world, so long as this world is presented within its frame. This framework, that introduces basic values and concepts, is known as the worldview, that is, the way we give meaning to the world.

In addition to many different worldviews, we have religious worldviews in general, and Islamic worldview in particular. Like any others, the Islamic worldview has fundamental values and concepts and a unique way of looking at life. Thanks to this perspective, Muslims have produced a culture of their own, inspired and moulded within its framework.

However, there is a moment when culture and worldview don't go hand in hand. This is due to the lack of clarity of vision and clear perception of worldview. This lack of clarity causes dire consequences on concrete forms of behavior and culture.
